Relevant news and research

3.9 Increased susceptibility to infection in smokers

Last updated March 2021

Research:

3.9.1 Acute respiratory infections
3.9.2 Chronic respiratory infections
3.9.3 Pneumonia, Pneumococcal disease and meningococcal disease
  3.9.3.1 Pneumonia
  3.9.3.2 Invasive pneumococcal disease
  3.9.3.3 Meningococcal disease
3.9.5 Tuberculosis
3.9.6 Risks for and complications of HIV
3.9.7 Other viral infections
3.9.8 Infections of reproductive organs
3.9.9 Periodontitis
3.9.10 Surgical infections
3.9.11 Other bacterial infections
3.9.12 Coronaviruses and the COVID-19 pandemic
  3.9.12.1 SARS and MERS outbreaks since 2002
  3.9.12.2 COVID-19 pandemic
  3.9.12.3 Potential mechanisms for the effect of smoking on COVID infection and outcomes

News reports:
Research:

3.9.1 Acute respiratory infections

3.9.2 Chronic respiratory infections

3.9.3 Pneumonia, Pneumococcal disease and meningococcal disease

3.9.3.1 Pneumonia

3.9.3.2 Invasive pneumococcal disease

3.9.3.3 Meningococcal disease

3.9.5 Tuberculosis

3.9.6 Risks for and complications of HIV

3.9.7 Other viral infections

3.9.8 Infections of reproductive organs
3.9.9 Periodontitis

3.9.10 Surgical infections

3.9.11 Other bacterial infections

3.9.12 Coronaviruses and the COVID-19 pandemic

3.9.12.1 SARS and MERS outbreaks since 2002

3.9.12.2 COVID-19 pandemic

3.9.12.3 Potential mechanisms for the effect of smoking on COVID infection and outcomes

News reports:

3.9.5 Tuberculosis

3.9.6 Risks for and complications of HIV

3.9.7 Other viral infections

de Wet, P. If you smoke, prepare to argue cigarettes are a basic good – or go without during lockdown. Business Insider South Africa, 2020. March 26, 2020. Retrieved from

3.9.12 Coronaviruses and the COVID-19 pandemic

3.9.12.2 COVID-19 pandemic

49